

CPC #44: Will technology make you comfortably numb?

If you can read this, you are living. But many of us have an existence without the ability to thrive. Have you ever noticed how as an adult, all the bright colors go out of your life? What makes you come alive? As an adult what makes you come of age once again? Most of the people I've spoken to about this over the last few weeks think love can do this best. I do not. I think your inner spirit is critical in coming of age once again as an adult. I think living a mundane existence allows us to become comfortably numb. I think our technology addiction locks us in to this state. It makes us easier to control and locks us in our inner cage.

The more we do under the sun, the more we become able to do for ourselves
